

Development of a Guide for Dietetics Students to Become Involved in Global Nutrition as a Career

Madeline Haber; Virginia Gray, PhD, RD; Judy Jou, PhD; Lisa Littrell, MPH, RD
Department of Family & Consumer Sciences
College of Health & Human Services, California State University Long Beach

Introduction

Global nutrition initiatives are a large focus within international humanitarian agencies as good nutrition supports social and economic structures, helping to empower individuals and break cycles of poverty and hunger under five, globally

- Dietitians play a role in effectively bridging together medical needs, social needs, policy development and program implementation. They are ultimately a vital component needed to achieve the global nutrition goals set by the World Health Organization, the United Nations, the United States Agency for International Development, and more
- The informational guide provides students with feasible ideas to get started on this track during school and post-graduation, and demonstrates real-life examples of how the expertise of dietitians positively benefits the goal to abolish global malnutrition

Results

Conclusion

Methods

Figure 1. Means for student review panel formative evaluation

Discussion

Acknowledgements

I would like to thank my committee, Dr. Virginia Gray, Lisa Littrell, and Dr. Judy Jou, for allotting their time and guidance throughout the development of this directed project, my peers in Cohort 10 of the MS/DI for their encouragement, and my friends and family for their unconditional love and support.

For more information

Please contact madeline.haber01@student.csulb.edu. More information on this and related projects can be found on the MS. Program in Nutritional Science page at www.csulb.edu.